

JAMES CONGDELL FARGO, III

James Congdell Fargo, 3d, entered St. Paul's as a Second Former in 1939 and graduated summa cum laude in 1943, a year ahead of his Form, with honors in Greek, Latin and Mathematics. He also was awarded the Oakes Prize in Greek and the Drumm Prize in Latin. He played on the Delphian football team, on his second club hockey team and he was on the third Shattuck crew. Particularly talented as an actor, he took a leading part in the plays produced by the Dramatic Club in his Fourth and Fifth Form years. He was a member of numerous other school organizations including the Pictorial, the Library Association and the Cadmean Literary Society. He was a boy of very keen mind, whose voice and manner, though they concealed an unusual amount of vigor, were expressive of the essential gentleness of his character.

Fargo entered Yale just before he was eighteen in July, 1943, and during the one term he was there was ranked in the top seven percent of his class and placed on the Dean's List.

He entered the Army in November, 1943. After training at Fort Benning he was assigned to A.S.T.P., but when the program was abandoned he was sent in March, 1944, to Camp Livingston, Louisiana, as a private in an Infantry unit, with which he went overseas in September, 1944. In England, he was reassigned to the First Army, 1st Division, 18th Infantry, Company E, and sent immediately into combat. On November 23, 1944, he was killed in action in Germany.

WILLIAM McHENRY KEYSER

McHenry Keyser entered the Second Form in 1939. In his Fifth Form year, he played on the Old Hundred football team. In 1943 he went to the summer school of the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, where he remained for the year 1943-1944.

Having enlisted in the Marine Corps in March, 1944, Keyser was called to active duty July 10 and sent first to Parris Island and then to New River. In November he was ordered to the West Coast and from there almost immediately went overseas in a Replacement Draft. He landed on Iwo Jima with the 21st Regiment, 3rd Marine Division. He was ordered as a replacement to the 9th Regiment, March 9. Two days later he was mortally wounded in action and he died at the age of eighteen, March 13, 1945.
