DEAR ALUMNI:

You see this time I am using that disputed word. A learned old boy; yes, a professor in College, took me quite testily to task about the word alumnus, saying that even if Dr. Johnson didn’t list it, he didn’t know everything, and that he could quote uses of the word alumnus for several centuries back. He thought, in fact, that Old Boy was an Anglican affectation, and that I liked it therefore! Suggested that perhaps instead of addressing me as Dear Rector he ought to begin Dear Old Head! After that sockdolager, shall I not meekly revert to the usual word? Yes, for this issue; but probably not for long!

We have just had (9:15 p.m.) the Last Night service in Chapel, and have been shaking innumerable hands of departing boys. Two or three seemed a little hazy as to their calendar, both scholastic and ecclesiastical, by saying, “Hope you’ll have a happy Easter.” As they leave tomorrow, March 27th, and return April 9th, well before Palm Sunday, such a greeting seems needless; for shall we not all be spending the happy Easter here together? Into a review of the Term I shall not go. The School in Action will amply cover that. Let me merely reflect that after 76 winter days, one schoolmaster is not averse to the delicious quietude of the deserted village of Millville.

So many nice things have happened since last I wrote to you. Where shall one begin? First, I recall a happy visit to our oldest Old Boy, General Appleton, as you know, lives in Boston. I delight to drop in at his house in Marlborough Street to sit with that kindly, interesting friend. He has always been such a gladsome backer of St. Paul’s. For years he was a Clerk of the Board of Trustees, where I came to love him and lean upon him in those old days. Though retired from the Board, he is as young in heart and as keenly interested in the School as any of you middle aged alumni or very young old boys could be. As Gen. Appleton sits there chatting in his mellow fashion in his sunny parlor I fall to wondering if in 50 years there will be any such gentle and refined oases left in the world.

Then there was a visit to Philadelphia. We dined at the Philadelphia Club. How extremely well citizens of that ancient town provide for their guests and... themselvess. The broad table, lit by tall candles, surrounded with genial and loyal graduates, makes a happy mark in January. We had a good Church service next day, and all felt grateful to Dr. Charles Hart for his indefatigable plannings.

Then in February came Baltimore, another hospitable town. On Sunday the choir of St. Paul’s Church sang much of Mr. Knox’s music, including a fine Te Deum by him. Dr. Kinsolving had thoughtfully invited all the alumni, so that we had a regular School service and a happy sort of reception in the porch afterward. The dinner on Monday evening was full of friendly, loyal concern about the School. Mr. Haxall showed me a watch that his father had given him in the 70’s, in connection with some School victory. He has carried it ever since. What a nice memento is a watch! What a good thing for a prize! I wish we had two or three watches instead of quite so many silver mugs and leather volumes, which we hand out so profusely to mark distinction in the School.

Last week came Providence, and the Rhode Island brethren (that is a good word, not only avoiding Alumni, but denoting citizens of my own State). Ernest Metcalf as usual was full of helpful solicitude. In the evening there was a Parents’ Meeting, where I discoursed fluently on the easy job of bringing up children. It’s amazing how simple to talk about, that difficult-to-do subject can be! Next day we had a pleasant lunch at the Hope Club, and Ernest motored me through the rain to the North Station in Boston.

I tell you these details just to show how wonderfully good the alumni are to representatives of the School. It has always been so. The account in this issue of the Western trip of our Faculty trio will bear out the conviction that no group of graduates can be more heartwarmingly kind than you who look back with vivid affection to your youth at St. Paul’s. Believe me.

Faithfully your friend,

S. S. DRURY.

THE SCHOOL IN ACTION
BY AN ALUMNUS MASTER

Another Winter Term has come and gone, leaving memories of brilliant sunny mornings, of short afternoons that ended easily in twilight, and of long nights when snow fell silently or blizzards howled. Thoughts now turn naturally to open water on Long Pond, to swinging eights driven by shouting coxswains. Yet it is interesting to look back over January, February and March. How much more effective will be the Anniversary Regatta for the hard preparatory work done in the basement of the gymnasium in those last weeks of March, when the snow still clung tenaciously in shady nooks about the school, and thermometers dropped several degrees below freezing every night! How many plans, matured during the Winter, will bear fruit this Spring — tennis team matches arranged by correspondence, golf games scheduled, matters of curriculum discussed by the Faculty, and surely the invitations to return for Anniversary that were given by so many boys to so many of the fair visitors who made the Winter Holiday such a success — all these and countless others form the great chain that is the School in Action, one link, or one term, inseparable from the others.

The spirit of accomplishment links all activities closely together. Especially is this true of athletics. Hockey coaches, for instance, notice that the boys who on the cinder track at the Lower grounds have been trained to get away to quick starts, are the most adept “puck-jumpers” when they need to turn quickly and dig their skates into hard smooth ice. Again, many of the boys who boxed in the gymnasium all Winter will surely play better football, for footwork and agility are the fundamentals of both sports.

But this article is not couched in general terms merely for the sake of theorizing; nor is it because of elapsed time that a more general view of the Winter term is taken. It is only because the club hockey series of the past Winter offered, by chance, a striking example of a link in a chain, a link with no beginning and no end. For the final obvious result of all the energy and activity of all the players and coaches of all three clubs was a completely rounded tie! While the Isthmians were taking the best two out of three games from the Old Hundreds, and the Old Hundreds the best two out of three games from the Delphians, the Delphians were going ahead to take the best two out of three games from the Isthmians. The sixth teams also played through to an all-around tie. Six other championships were to be settled. Of these, each club won two; therefore the Davis Cup for the majority of the hockey series could not be awarded. Yet there can be no feeling of futility about less apparent results, at least for any master or boy or alumnus who has the perspective to see the hockey at St. Paul’s in toto, who realized that a definite triumph is not as important as exercise cleanly taken or sport well played and thoroughly enjoyed.

To look more closely at the first team series, the first game was played on January 16. The Isthmians scored 6 goals to the Old Hundreds’ 1. The continual use of the five man attack by both teams took away some of the pleasure from the spectators. Surely it is more enjoyable to watch a forward line, as a unit, manoeuvre a puck from their own territory up through center ice by a series of well executed, well timed passes, than to strain to follow the series of mad scrambles, first in one end of the rink, then in another, that ensues when the puck is shot far out of danger, and the forward lines wildly rush after it to the attack. In this first game, the individual players on the winning team excelled their opponents. The Isthmians continued their winning streak in beating the Delphians 2 to 1. In the next game, the Old Hundreds, improved since they last took the rink in a game, gained and kept the jump, to defeat the Delphians 5 to 2, but went down to defeat three days later for the second time to the Isthmians 5 to 1. The Isthmians played more aggressively. Something seemed to draw out their most strenuous efforts when they encountered the Old Hundreds.
Isthmian hopes of a championship received a setback on January 28, however, when the Delphians won a close contest by a 2 to 1 score. A few days later the Delphians held the short end of a 2 — 1 score when they went down to defeat a second time in playing the Old Hundreds. The last game of the series (February 4th) and one of the best, ended in a 6 — 4 victory for the Delphians. Two overtime periods were necessary to decide whether the game would bring an Isthmian championship or an all-round tie. As stated above, the series ended in a deadlock. The Isthmian Club was forced to be content with a clean cut victory in the Lower School.

Since the hockey periods of practice last only for about three quarters of an hour, ample time was spent by many boys on squash and, more significant, skiing. Skiing conditions were excellent because of frequent light snows. The store sold complete skiing equipment to meet the needs of the increasing number of enthusiasts. No attempt has been made to organize any club competition in skiing. The very informality and freedom from organization appeals to the devotees of a sport that leads along woodland trails and permits one to set one's own pace, unhurried by any competition other than that of a friend or two.

Squash, on the other hand, admitted of the usual club comparisons. The Old Hundreds won the club championship; the Isthmians were second; the Delphians third. The S.P.S. squash team won from Exeter and Brooks in the school courts, but lost to these schools in return matches.

After the club hockey was over, at least for the first and second teams, Mr. Fisher made up a school team from the best players in the clubs. Dartmouth, Yale and Harvard were in the offing. The school team had been defeated by Princeton in New York on December 21. (Alumni Horae, December, 1934). Much adjustment was necessary before a smooth-working attack and defense were developed. Unfortunately for Mr. Fisher, a wild shot, flying above the boards, caught him unprepared and broke his nose. Shortly after this accident, he met with another that necessitated his withdrawal from active coaching. Mr. Harman took over the post of head coach very ably.

The season was characterized by hard playing in the face of strong opposition. The Dartmouth game was a very exciting one. The visitors were heavier, more experienced, and scored 3 goals to the School team’s 1. The experience was invaluable to the team, which was able to come back and defeat the Yale Freshmen 3 to 2. For the first time in history, every member of the Yale team that began the game was a St. Paul’s graduate. The ice was soft and watery, but in spite of the conditions the playing was good and very enjoyable to watch. Although the contest was rough at times, there were no penalties; the players all knew each other of old!

Harvard invaded the school at the time of our Midwinter Holiday. Whether the presence of so many fair spectators disconcerted the school team is not certain, but the four Harvard scores in the first period are now a matter of record.
Better teamwork had seldom been seen on the rinks. St. Paul's recovered in the second, scoring three goals. For a moment it seemed that victory was still possible. Frenzied applause of clacking sticks along the boards rose in volume. But we scored only once again, and Harvard three times, so that the game ended 7 to 4 in favor of the visitors. It was a fitting climax to the season.

Apart from athletics, the activities of the Winter term were numerous. So much took place that any adequate summary would be very lengthy. The future of the United States was in the balance, really, when, at the joint meeting of the Cadmean and Concordian Societies the resolution was debated: that a public-spirited young man is more useful (to the country) in a political than in a non-political career. There was much talk of "the aggressiveness of youth," of "trucking to the machine," and of "raising the standards of the general public." On the merits of the debating, the Concordians, upholding the negative, were judged the victors.

Inter-house debating again was successful. Many boys had a chance to look up references in the library, to prepare cogent arguments, and to face audiences of twenty or thirty persons. A mock trial was held in a Fourth Form house that aroused much interest. Prosecution and defense waxed eloquent over the "murder" that had been staged in a basement. Then too, several plays were presented toward the end of the term, when poor weather gave the amateur dramatists a chance to learn their lines of an afternoon.

More varied and more numerous than ever have been the entertainments presented in the Hall. Such moving pictures as "One Night of Love," "David Copperfield,” “The Lives of a Bengal Lancer,” and “The Iron Duke” have met with much approval. Mr. George E. Sokolsky gave a lecture on the subject, “Has the League of Nations Failed?” Mr. Whiting Williams, who has spent much time working and living as a laborer, interested the School in telling us “What my Double Life Has Taught Me.” Helen Howe made Gaudy Day memorable with her delightful monologues; Myra Hess stimulated the growing interest in good music by her splendid performance on the piano. In regard to music, the constant use of the record library gives promise that in time many more boys will know something definite of symphonies, waltzes, toccatas, and fugues! Opera singers are at last in friendly competition with jazz artists!

The welcome accorded by the School to such distinguished visitors as have just been mentioned is always enthusiastic. Of a more intimate nature is that accorded to those alumni who are able to return, even for a short time, to see the School as it moves forward. Their interest is invaluable, their visits mutually beneficial. Too often in the past have the writers of this article pointed out that much of the underlying spirit of the place had better be sensed rather than read about. How can those parts of life at school which center in the chapel, in the Rector’s library at the time of the masters’ meetings, even in the house meetings when the sixth formers on the Council conduct the elections that express the tone of the School from term to term, and from form to form, be sketched out in black and white? It is well nigh impossible. Yet in looking back over the Winter of 1934-35, through the welter of apparently unrelated activities, it is the sense of planned progress, carried forward in the spirit of the place as a whole, that stands out as a permanent reality.

FORM AGENTS’ DINNER

THE 1935 Alumni Fund campaign opened on February 19th with the Annual Form Agents’ Dinner at the Racquet and Tennis Club, New York. Out of the 59 agents, there were 28 present, a remarkably good showing and a fine augury for a successful year.

John H. Stewart, ’10, Chairman of the Alumni Fund, presided and welcomed the agents, predicting that the Fund this year would surpass last year’s total of $12,807.91.

The Chairman then read the following letter which he had received from the Rector:

Dear Old Boys:

Jack Stewart suggests that I should send a word of Godspeed to you on the eve of our 1935 Campaign. He will have to read this aloud to you.

By accumulating a fund for 1935, you will be helping the School toward further effectiveness. While it is for the Trustees to determine the objective of your collected gifts, one can probably predict that continuance of scholarship aid will be strongly in their minds. As you know, for three or four years past the collected givings of the Alumni have meant granting scholarship aid to anywhere from a dozen to twenty worthwhile boys. We must always contend for variation in economic background among our boys at St. Paul’s. This must never be, don’t we all agree, a School for rich men’s sons? At the present time, no one could charge any school with being that; but it is a fact that every gift made by an alumnus to the fund enables the Alma Mater to prove a better friend to its alumni, and a better servant in our democracy.

Believe me, Faithfully yours, S. S. Drury.

Mr. Stewart then stated that Mr. Byers, President of the Alumni Association, was unable to be present on account of his son’s illness but had sent a letter of greeting which he read.

Then followed a discussion as to ways and means and it was determined that copies of the Rector’s letter be sent out together with statistics to be prepared by the Committee.

Leonard Sullivan, ’04, a member of the Alumni Fund Committee, was then called on. Mr. Sullivan explained the working of the Regional Director plan which he had conceived and put through for the first time last year and which he will have charge of this year. The Regional Directors are Alumni living in various centres outside of New York City who cooperate with the Form Agents in establishing contact with men from whom the agents have difficulty in obtaining replies.
Mr. Sullivan said he felt that the plan was distinctly worth trying again in spite of certain difficulties, arising mostly from insufficient understanding of the plan on the part of the Directors. He said that with a year’s experience back of it, the machinery would function more efficiently, and emphasized the value of the personal equation in soliciting Alumni. This in many cases could be obtained only through the help of a Regional Director living in the same community as the Alumnus who was solicited. One telephone or personal call was better than any number of letters.

Several of the Agents spoke of their experiences with the Regional Directors and it was the sense of the meeting that the latter could give more efficient service if their spare time was not occupied with the duties of acting as Form Agents for their own forms as well.

The Chairman then called on Richard M. Hurd, ’83, Chairman of the Standing Committee of the Association as well as Agent for his Form and a former Chairman of the Alumni Fund. Mr. Hurd spoke in praise of Arthur S. Pier, ’90, and his History of St. Paul’s School and related amusing anecdotes of school life in the days of the first Rector.

The next speaker was the senior Form Agent present, W. Strother Jones, ’77, the company honoring him by rising in a body in the Chautauqua salute. Mr. Jones spoke briefly of his delight at being present and of the value of the Fund to the School.
Others who spoke were Dr. Joseph S. Wheelwright, '93, who talked humorously of the value of the Labrador retriever as a shining example to the Form Agents: Trowbridge Callaway, '01, a former President of the Association, who emphasized the importance of the work of the younger agents and the willingness of the Association and the older Agents to assist them in getting out their letters; and Harry Parsons Cross, '92, of Providence, who had travelled the farthest to attend the dinner and who said that as he had attended St. Paul's for only one year, he felt that there must be an extraordinary spirit in the School which had given him in that short period a feeling of undying loyalty to it.

John C. Jay, '97, was called upon. During his term of office as President of the Association, he said he had been impressed by the number of parents who had been in financial difficulty and who had consulted him to see if a way could be found to enable their sons to complete their course at the School. He was glad that the Fund had been the means of helping some of these and that it was most probable that sons of Alumni would again be given scholarships or half scholarships by means of the 1935 Fund.

Among others who spoke briefly were J. Lawrence Pool, '81, Dr. Edward R. Lampson, '87, Dr. Arthur E. Neergaard, '99, and C. Jared Ingersoll, '13. At the conclusion of the dinner Mr. Sullivan emphasized the great value of the services of Mr. Stewart and pointed out that not only was he chairman but that his Form of 1910 stood at the top of the honor roll in 1934. This was a great inspiration to us all. Mr. Jay then lead the singing of “Salve Mater” and the meeting adjourned.

In addition to those already mentioned, the following were present:

STUART D. PRESTON, '02.

1935 ALUMNI FUND

CONTRIBUTIONS of $5,274.50 from 540 Alumni have been received towards the 1935 Alumni Fund up to April 27th. To this amount should properly be added $500.00 which was sent directly to the School by a member of the Form of 1884, who requested that his generous gift be credited to his Form.

While the Trustees have as yet made no allocation of the funds which will be given to the School from the 1935 Fund, your Chairman feels justified in stating that a continuance of the scholarship aid which has been granted in the past few years will be strongly in their minds.

Any elaboration of the purposes and accomplishments of the Alumni Fund would be redundant, for its splendid work is self-evident. The preliminary report for this year will be made at the Anniversary meeting of the Alumni Association, and the cooperation of every Alumnus with his Form Agent will do much to assure the success of the Fund. Contributions from Alumni should be forwarded promptly, either to the respective agents, or direct to the office of the Alumni Association, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York.

The Alumni Fund is not a collection agency, but rather a cause in which all St. Paul's Alumni may share of their own volition to the extent of their ability to contribute.

John H. Stewart, '10, Chairman.

CLASS OF 1885 — 50TH ANNIVERSARY THIS JUNE.
ANNIVERSARY 1935

ANNIVERSARY this year will be on Saturday and Sunday, June 1st and 2nd. The athletic sports and presentation of prizes will be held on the afternoon of Friday, May 31st. It is felt that the same arrangement as last year, of having the exercises during a week-end instead of in the middle of the week, will permit more people to attend. The schedule in full is given below.

Alumni are earnestly requested to send their acceptances to the Rector’s invitation, which will follow in due course, to the School as promptly as possible. They should bear in mind that accommodations at Anniversary are limited and that, for their comfort and convenience, a considerable amount of planning in advance is necessary.

The School will furnish beds only to individual Alumni who apply for them in advance. Alumni intending to bring their wives, children, or other members of their families, should make their rooming arrangements independently.

We give below a list of the Forms holding Reunions this year:

ORDERS FOR SCHOOL HISTORY

The valuable and extremely interesting History of the School, “St. Paul’s School — 1855-1934,” written by Arthur Stanwood Pier, ’87-’91, and published by Charles Scribner’s Sons last autumn, has had a most gratifying sale. Everyone who has read the book speaks in the warmest praise of its comprehensiveness, the absorbing interest of its story, and its splendid literary quality. We feel sure that there are still many Alumni and friends of St. Paul’s who will be glad to have the volume on their bookshelves.

The price of the book, including delivery charges, is $3.50 per copy, and orders with shipping instructions should be sent to the Alumni Association of St. Paul’s School, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. A RECENT EXPEDITION

On February 29th, Messrs. Kittredge, Harman, and Wister left the school to begin what proved to be an eminently successful and thoroughly pleasant two-weeks’ trip through a succession of alumni centers. Many men who had not been able to return to St. Paul’s for some years had a chance to meet the three masters and ask questions at first hand about the school. In Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Louis, and Cincinnati, the interest expressed by alumni and friends of the school was genuine and lively. Due to the efforts of Warren Corning in Cleveland, Robert Derrick and Stephen Stackpole in Detroit, Albert Sprague in Chicago, Hunter Goodrich in Milwaukee, C. Bolles Rogers in Minneapolis, Alfred Gardner in St. Louis, and Langdon Laws and de Gray Vanderbilt in Cincinnati, the several teas and dinners which had been arranged were well attended.

Very cordial to the three faculty members were the many alumni who gathered to reminisce about old times and to discuss present conditions; very solicitous were the fathers of boys now in the school, whether they themselves had attended St. Paul’s or not; very friendly and most hospitable were the mothers and wives of boys and men who had spent some years of their lives in New Hampshire; and most curious were the friends of those connected with the school who were invited to attend teas or dinners where discussion ran free about the whole question of preparatory school education.

For the most part, the talking was informal; but on occasion, when the company desired a more formal address, Mr. Kittredge, as vice rector, spoke of the new plan of entrance examinations, stated the desire of the school entrance committee to keep the geographical distribution as broad as possible, and outlined the policy of allowing the more able students to go ahead in the honor divisions. Mr. Harman outlined the disciplinary system under which the Disciplinary Committee and the School Council operates, giving particular attention to the election by the sixth form of four officers, and the election of House Committees and Inspectors by the lower forms. He dealt with the tone of the school, and endeavored to show how the boys were being given as much responsibility as they could take. Mr. Wister presented a picture of the athletic life of the place, dealing with the club system, and the sports in general.

The trip was conceived as a friendly gesture on the part of the school to show that it was interested in having a chance to educate boys from cities further west than Philadelphia, Boston, New York, and Pittsburgh. It was made possible by the planning of Dr. Drury with the keen cooperation of Clarence West, both of whom, through almost every modern method of communication, were an indispensable aid to the three representatives. It was felt in many quarters that no greater tribute could have been rendered to the school than was expressed everywhere in the hospitality and friendly interest of its well-wishers.
What if financial worries, what if the world outlook, the New Deal, the Future of Civilization, appear to require all our attention and sober thought. Forget it! The New England weather, in spite of Mark Twain’s low opinion of it, is glorious in June, and we will guarantee that civilization will last until Monday, June 3d, even if you are not in your office looking after it. And after that? Well, what of it? For you have lived!

Although we have no intention of changing the name of The Alumni Horae to The Old Boy’s Horae, we are in sympathy with Dr. Drury’s feeling that Old Boy is the best designation for one who has attended St. Paul’s, whether he be old or young. St. Paul’s need not worry about being accused of “going British” at this late date.

If we were in a position to enforce it, we should make The History of St. Paul’s School, by Arthur S. Pier, compulsory reading for every Old Boy. Though it might not be able to increase our love for the School, it will surely increase our understanding of it, and perhaps help to explain why we love the School as we do.

You are urged to become the owner of a copy of this most interesting and worthwhile volume.
A TRIBUTE

ABBOT TREADWELL, for the last eighteen years Secretary and Clerk of the Alumni Association of St. Paul’s School, died on March 23, 1935, at the Alumni House which had been his home ever since it was built.

He was born in Concord, N. H., October 10, 1864, at the house of his grandfather, Joseph Stevens Abbot. His parents were Col. Thomas J. Treadwell (U. S. Army, Ordnance Corps), who was graduated from West Point in 1854, and Margaret Anne Abbot. He had one sister, Mrs. Padro Pablo de Arozarena, and one brother, Col. Thomas C. Treadwell, U. S. Marines (S. P. S., ’86). He lived during his childhood at eastern Army posts; when nine years old he went to Ury House, a boarding school at Foxchase, Pa., near Frankford Arsenal, Philadelphia, where his father was then stationed.

While he was at St. Paul’s School (1878-1881) his father and mother died within a day of each other at Governor’s Island, N. Y. His uncle, Edward A. Abbot (for a number of years a Trustee of St. Paul’s) became his guardian; after graduation from St. Paul’s he made his home with his uncle in Boston and entered the family business, Abbot Downing Co., Coach Builders (founded 1813).

In 1891 he married Marion Abbot, and had one son, Abbot Treadwell, Jr. (S. P. S., ’12). From 1891 to 1899 he was with the Abbot Downing Company in their New York office.

In 1899 he came to Concord as manager of the Abbot Downing Company factory; on account of his intimate friendship with Joe Coit and Will Foster he arranged to live at the School. At that time there was no lodging place provided by the School for visiting parents and friends. Malcolm Gordon, ’87, and Abbot Treadwell formed a plan to build a School Inn by subscription. Dr. Joseph Coit, who was then Rector, agreed to the plan on two conditions — that Abbot Treadwell should live in the house, and that only people who had some connection with the School should be taken as guests. Between them, Treadwell and Gordon raised the money; the house was built, and was opened in 1902.

In 1912 Treadwell joined the School staff as an active master and in 1917 he became Secretary and Clerk of the Alumni Association.

The foregoing recital of facts conveys no idea of the importance of Abbot Treadwell’s service to the School or of the esteem and affection in which he was held by the boys, the graduates, and the friends of St. Paul’s. His work was varied and exacting. As director of the Alumni House, he had the difficult task of managing a school inn so skilfully that it would not show a heavy deficit and yet would supply satisfactory service to its occasional and transient guests. As Chairman of the Committee on Admission to the School, he carried on an extensive correspondence with the parents of applicants. He had charge of the boys’ allowances, supervised their balancing of their check books, and gave them the rudiments of training in the handling of money and in business methods. He granted permissions to go to town and to hire horses for riding — seemingly trivial and perfunctory duties, yet involving in many instances careful inquiry and the exercise of good judgment. He supervised the arrangements for sending the boys home at the end of term, procured their railroad tickets, and made all necessary reservations — a task that became complicated by the provision for “traveling time” and “credits,” under which some boys are allowed to leave two, three or even four days early because of the distance to their homes or because of the excellence of their school record. The working out of travel schedules, the arrangements for special trains and the accounting for railway tickets required painstaking care and close attention to detail; it was work that Abbot Treadwell performed with quiet efficiency, accuracy and good humor. His ability to make pleasant and comfortable arrangements for others seemed almost a native gift; it was the expression of an unselfish nature trained to forethought and precision.

Abbot Treadwell’s whole heart was in the service of St. Paul’s. As Secretary and Clerk of the Alumni Association he was active in furthering the interests of the School. Every old St. Paul’s boy who revisited the School received a welcome from him. There are few old boys who have thus returned and for whom the hospitable living-room of the Treadwells in the Alumni House is not associated with pleasant memories. A delightful companion, a loyal friend, a modest and chivalrous gentleman, Abbot Treadwell endeared himself to the whole fellowship of St. Paul’s School. His merry, kindly disposition, his sympathetic interest in all sorts of people, his keen observation and retentive memory, his shrewd judgment of character, and his wise and philosophic outlook on life combined to form a rich and mellow personality. Self-effacing, true to his standards, he served with industry, patience and intelligence an institution in which he had a lifelong pride.

I'd like to have the money to establish in this hall specimens of all the birds, the insects, trees and flowers as well as specimens of the geologic formations. Think what that would mean to the children of this region.” A Philadelphia bachelor speaking, Charles Meigs Biddle Cadwalader, '01-'05, who won Philadelphia's highest honor this year, the Bok award of $10,000, a carved casket, a vellum scroll and a gold medal.

Though he holds a Master of Science's degree from the University of Pennsylvania, the managing director (since 1928) of Philadelphia's Academy of Natural Sciences modestly says he is no scientist. In point of fact, he has specialized in ornithology since St. Paul's days, gathering America's finest collection of water fowl and wading birds to present to his museum. Under his direction the Academy's expeditions have already travelled over a million miles in search of rare specimens and at the time of the award, Mr. Cadwalader could list current field activities in Bolivia, Western China, the West Indies, Africa, Guatemala and Siam.

ALUMNI GATHERINGS

Philadelphia

On Saturday evening, January 19th, a meeting of the Philadelphia Alumni Association was held at the Philadelphia Club. Alumni matters were discussed and the following officers were elected to serve until the next meeting:

- President .................................................. Dr. Charles D. Hart, '88
- Vice-President .............................................. Frederick R. Drayton, '13
- Secretary-Treasurer ...................................... Edward B. Smith, Jr., '17

Following the meeting a dinner in honor of Dr. Drury was given. The Rector made the sole speech of the evening. About fifty-six members were present for this most enjoyable gathering.

On Sunday, January 20th, a special St. Paul's School Service was held at 11 a.m. at St. Paul's Church, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, by its Rector, the Rev. Malcolm Peabody. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Samuel S. Drury.
The choir sang “Oh, Pray for the Peace of Jerusalem” and some of the School hymns. There was a large attendance.

At one o’clock on the same day a reception and luncheon was tendered to Dr. Drury at the Sunnybrook Club by the Alumni and friends of the School at which eighty-five people were present.

Pittsburgh

The following is taken from the church service program of January 27th of Calvary Church of which the Rev. Edwin J. van Etten is Rector:

“A most cordial welcome this morning to alumni and all ‘old boys’ of St. Paul’s School, Concord. St. Paul’s is one of the oldest of all our church schools and has an outstanding place among the finer boarding schools of the country. I am always thrilled to remember that Dr. Drury, the present headmaster, is an old friend of mine from the days when I was teaching at St. Mark’s School and he was at St. Stephen’s Church in Boston. It is a matter of regret to all of us that Dr. Drury himself can not come for the service this morning. He writes me that many other previous engagements would make such a visit impossible on just this day. All of us are hoping that perhaps another year our invitation may come first on his list of engagements.

“There is always something very impressive in the loyalty of men to their school and college. This, I think, is especially true when a boy has gone away from home at a rather early age. So many of his boyhood memories must inevitably centre in his school life. It is the school which is truly his second home and it is the school teachers who are his second parents. In this matter of devotion and loyalty, I am sure the alumni of St. Paul’s, Concord, stand second to none. It is a safe guess that some of the deepest feelings in the hearts of many of us this morning are centered in the old school days on those far away hills of New Hampshire.”

Cambridge, Mass.

Rev. H. Martin P. Davidson, clerical master of St. Paul’s School, preached in Christ Church on Sunday, February 3rd, at 7:30 p.m. Preceding the service, the Rev. and Mrs. C. Leslie Glenn invited all St. Paul’s graduates now at Harvard for six o’clock supper at the Rectory at 1 Garden Street to meet Mr. Davidson.

Baltimore

Arriving in Baltimore on the evening of Saturday, February 9th, Dr. Drury was taken to the home of William F. Cochran, ’94, and Mrs. Cochran.

His first speaking engagement was at the 11 o’clock Sunday service on the following day at Old St. Paul’s Church. There he preached to a congregation well augmented by Alumni and by parents of prospective scholars. Dr. Drury took for his subject: “The Law of Unselfishness.” Music was arranged for by Herbert M. Brune, ’83, through the selection of familiar tunes of Mr. James C. Knox’s composition, and “Pray for the Peace of Jerusalem” was excellently rendered by the local St. Paul’s School Boy Choir.

At 4:00 p.m. service at the Pro-Cathedral Dr. Drury addressed a good sized congregation, made up of many various congregations which had been circularized concerning the subject: "Living the Truth."

On Monday at noon at a well attended meeting of the Diocesan Clericus the Rector spoke on the subject: "Straight Thoughts of a Non-parochial." The clergy were enthusiastic and deeply impressed with his address.

At 4:30 p.m. at another meeting, held under the auspices of the Private School Association of Baltimore, the Rector again spoke on the subject: "School, Home and Company." His audience, made up largely of the parents of many prominent families, showed the utmost enthusiasm for the Rector’s handling of this subject in his wise and entertaining manner.

At the Maryland Club at 7 o’clock the St. Paul’s School Alumni Association was convened with 40 members present, among them several parents whose sons are entered for the near or far future.

Dr. John R. Oliver, ’89, presided in a very jovial vein. The Rector was most happy in his remarks which were made all too abbreviated because of the train scheduling his departure. The familiar way in which the Rector recalled names and faces of men, even those as antiquated as his Rectorship, was very striking. It gave us all a sense of great satisfaction and pride to have our Alma Mater so effectively represented in the presence of our very good friend, Samuel S. Drury.

WILLIAM F. COCHRAN, ’94.

Providence

Dr. Drury visited Providence on March 18th and 19th where he addressed the Parents’ League on the former date. He began by saying that he had changed the title of his address from “School, Home & Co.” to “One Rhode Islander to Another,” in spite of Mrs. Drury’s asking him if he expected an audience of one only. His audience was at least like one in the eager and interested way they absorbed his remarks. The following day a few Alumni, with a sprinkling of graduates of other schools, met the Rector at lunch, and were impressed by a simple and illuminating account of his many activities during a typical school day.

New York City

The Annual Service in New York was held at St. Bartholomew’s Church on Sunday, March 31st, at four o’clock in the afternoon. Dr. G. P. T. Sargent, Rector of the Church, extended a most friendly and cordial welcome to Dr. Drury, the alumni and friends of the School. In accordance with the custom started a year ago, the President of the Sixth Form, Hugh W. Fosburgh, read the Lesson. Dr. Drury preached his usual thoughtful and effective sermon and the School Anthem and hymns, sung by the St. Bartholomew’s Choir under the direction of Dr. David McK. Williams, were exceptionally well rendered. There was an unusually large attendance. Henry Mc. Bangs, ’02, was chairman of the committee that arranged the service.
