John B. Edmonds, '19
1901 - 1966
JOHN EDMONDS finished the editing of this number of the Alumni Horae; at the printer's he "put it to bed," as we say in the trade. Going home, there were chores to do, and then he lay down for what was to be a short rest. In that afternoon, Monday, March 25, he died.

His going removes a man who, as student, teacher and alumnus had written himself quietly into the history of St. Paul's School. A large part of his life was spent here; his thoughts were of this place at the end. He will be missed the more having died at what seems so young an age — young even beyond his sixty-four years. For John Edmonds had a gentleness of spirit that survived the changes of time and kept him to the end unruffled and inquiring. He had never grown stale, and his presence was a reminder to others that life had its constantly renewed rewards.

Born in New York in 1901 and receiving his early schooling there, he entered the second form at St. Paul's in 1915. The boy he was is lost to us, save in the records which show his marks to have been consistently near the top of his form, and his spare time (I think they really did speak of spare time in those days) filled with activities of unostentatious service. A good share of Dickey prizes, the Drum Prize for highest distinction in Latin, the Whipple Medal for the best written examination in English literature — these and a scattering of offices in such organizations as the Missionary Society, the Library Association, the Scientific Association, were the accomplishments of a student whom one may presume to have been modest among his classmates, somewhat diffident in athletic contests, and yet prepared to step up with natural authority to receive at the end his Magna cum Laude diploma.

I say "natural authority," for it is worth noting that this lad who rowed on the sixth Halcyon crew and in his last year played on the third Delphian football team, was a member of the Council. That was at the very beginning of the Council, in the grim and great World War I years, when Gil Winant sought out the best boys in the School to help a corps of masters sadly depleted by calls to service. John would have been inevitably among those best, as in an age of changing standards and blurred ideals he was always among those who stood for excellence and for the highest level of personal responsibility.

John went to Harvard and immediately on graduation, in the autumn of 1923, came back to St. Paul’s to teach. For twenty-nine years, until his resignation in 1952, he carried on his duties as master, coach and wise school counselor. It is recorded that he taught at various times German, French, English and History. As far as I am concerned, he taught only French. For it was in this capacity I first knew him, having come to the school when he had been a teacher but four years. My memory of him was as one reserved and rather silent, scarcely prepared to unbend in the classroom, yet patient and resigned as a coach. (I was on a low crew myself; I realize only now how well he understood and sympathised with that position!)

One’s first impression, indeed, was of an iron man. Yet there was always the hint of something else. Once he caught me drawing in class, and calling me to the front of the room with the incriminating evidence, he reacted in a most surprising way. Instead of the severity, even harshness, I had expected, he complimented me (a little sarcastically) upon the effort and continued without making another reference to my lapse. Another occasion must have been even more trying for him. In some would-be humorous and quite irreverent verses read before the Concordian Society, I expressed my feelings about what had seemed to me an unnecessarily stiff reaction of his to some small misdemeanor.

John got wind of the affront. I must have known that inevitably he would, and perhaps in some dim way I was deliberately probing for the humanity which I sensed to exist beneath the reserved exterior. If that was the aim, it worked. John Edmonds called me to his room, where I went in fear and trembling. His gentle forbearance on that occasion, his unexpected sympathy and sense of humor, made me want to be his friend for life.

It must be remembered that all this was before John’s marriage, to Miss Temple Biddle in 1936, brought dogs and what seemed innumerable children into his existence and made known to all the genial side of his nature. I wouldn’t want to say that marriage changed John; but it certainly brought out glowingly the man’s completeness.

In these later years as a master at St. Paul’s, John Edmonds became increasingly a man to turn to. In addition to his role as housemaster (the Upper, Middle, above all Drury) he was Chairman of the Disciplinary Committee for many years, Chairman of the Housing Committee, Secretary of a Committee appointed by Dr. Drury to find means of raising the academic standards of the School. He was President of the Shattuck and faculty adviser of the Horae. And then one day in 1952 he resigned from the School and with his growing family went to live in Andover. Here Mr. Edmonds continued his vocation of teaching, his avocation of gardening, and his abiding concern for what is best in St. Paul's.

My path crossed again with his, for we worked together upon the volume which contained the record of the School in World War II. No labor was ever undertaken or carried through with more love. I was at this time editor of the Alumni Horae — a task I accomplished somewhat hurriedly and erratically by rushing over in my lunch hour from the offices of the New York Herald Tribune to those of the Alumni Association on Fifth Avenue. John took over from me, and the editing entered upon calmer days. From his home in Andover he bestowed upon the magazine season by season a concern for detail, an interest in everything that touched the life of the School past or present, which made it unique among school publications.

With the gift of the true editor John Edmonds encouraged the St. Paul's family to dig into its memories and to stir up its opinions, so that accounts of the regular activities of the School and the Alumni Association were increasingly supplemented by reports and pictures reaching to the deeper layers of the School's life. Not lacking in ideas of his own, he was ever ready (as I had occasion to know) to take suggestions from others.

After some years of his editorship, the production of the Alumni Horae was moved to a printing office near Andover, thus permitting John to keep an eye on every last detail as successive issues went to print. It was to this labor that he gave the last hours of his life on earth.

The issue he watched over has now been delayed so that this sad note may be inserted. To John Edmond's widow, to his brother and to his children — Nicholas, John, Elizabeth and Ellen — we express our deep sympathy in their loss. The St. Paul's community near and far will know that a good man has gone from its midst — a gentle man yet with the steel of excellence, a quiet man yet quick to speak out where shoddiness or injustice was involved. He died as he had lived, going serenely about his chosen tasks.

AUGUST HECKSCHER, '32
DEAR ALUMNI:

As I write this letter the School is covered with accumulated snow, and only yesterday it snowed from midnight until midafternoon. We are having good, cold, snowy weather this winter, and the snow is needed for the spring filling of ponds depleted by several years of drought. Long Pond has been pathetic. If we were still rowing there, we couldn't begin to carry on a decent program for crew. Where the boat houses once stood there is a broad expanse of mud, dried and sprouting grass. The City through a huge pump installation at our Turkey dam site sends over five million gallons of water a day to Long Pond, and the hope is that there will be enough Turkey water this winter and spring to refill Long Pond.

In the meantime, black ice prevails on the School Pond and skiing conditions are good on the slopes in this part of New England. We send several bus loads of boys, with masters supervising, to ski on occasional Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, and on St. Paul's Day as well as on Surprise Holiday — which event we all enjoyed only a short while ago.

Our Bishop is on a sabbatical leave this year, and Bishop Malcolm E. Peabody, retired of Central New York, is coming tomorrow to confirm. This evening the Sixth Form will produce their Annual Show for the entertainment of the School, and a week from tonight Dave Brubeck and his quartet will be here, as part of the Conroy Fellows program, to let us all learn more of what jazz really is and ought to be.

I tell you of this in order that you may know of the diversity of activities which accompanies the routine so essential to academic development of capable students. As I have pointed out before, our concern is to offer refreshment to boys in terms of amusement, non-academic pursuits and unexpected diversion while the academic demands are filling so much of their time. Time was when we were urging more books and study, while in our present time we seek gaps, and must even create gaps, in the schedule to make possible leisure where once was labor or simple, scheduled events.

There are losses in giving up time-honored activities to create periods for more leisurely pursuits, but in a crowded schedule and a crowded world the cost is inevitable.

"We do the best we feeble can" to protect what was and is, but changes in emphasis and in hours for events and activity are forever being offered, and must often be accepted.

Anniversary will be unaltered and we look forward with pleasure to your return.

February 26, 1966

Faithfully yours,
MATTHEW M. WARREN, Rector
R E-ENCOUNTER with St. Paul's School, after a sabbatical year in Europe, reveals the impressive clarity with which the School is rethinking its heritage, and progressively refining a policy that will best enable it to fulfill its mission in a changing world, without losing touch with its past.

An obvious illustration is vertical housing, which involves some reshuffling of the traditional mode of housing boys at St. Paul's School, yet is integrally related to previous experience.

Inaugurated last fall, the new system bids fair to produce greater solidarity without rigidity, and a happier combination of the individual and the social in the life of the School.

Already the social atmosphere of the Houses reflects in subtle ways a more dignified, yet natural and easy relationship among boys of different forms. As was to be expected, this represents merely a further refinement of an atmosphere long characteristic of the School.

The relative smoothness with which the transition to vertical housing has thus far developed testifies to the thoroughness with which the School, including both Council and Faculty, had rethought the inherited pattern of housing, as well as to the wisdom of the School in limiting the experiment primarily to the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Forms.

The Third Form and the Lower School are not a regular part of the system, although several Sixth Formers, instead of the customary two Supervisors, now live in each of the Third Form Houses; and six, instead of four Supervisors, now live with the First and Second Forms in the Lower. In many ways, the whole program is thus a less radical departure from traditional housing arrangements than might at first seem to be the case.

Problems of one sort and another undoubtedly remain, but, on the whole, the omens seem more favorable than unfavorable to the change.

Indications are that the new housing arrangements will combine elements of mobility and stability in ways that may provide a more adequate preparation for coping with the American milieu as it is developing.

Another important revision of the traditional housing pattern has been the removal this year of Third Formers from the Lower School, where they have long been a restless element. Limiting the Lower to the First and Second Forms seems to bring the Lower into sharper focus, and to give it greater coherence and a more manageable compass. At the same time, the conversion of the old Lower School dining room into the new common room provides a more attractive setting for relaxation.
The thoroughness with which the School is rethinking its inherited pattern was further reflected in the Council’s Program for Independent Study, submitted to the Faculty last fall.

Basically, the plan recommended that, at the conclusion of the first marking period in the spring term (April 23 this year), all formal classes for the Sixth Form should end; and that, after that point, each Sixth Former should be allowed to concentrate on some special project, academic or non-academic, without the interruption of customary classroom routines, yet under the general supervision of a member of the Faculty.

The Program was designed to give each Sixth Former a deeper experience of independent work, that would enrich and strengthen the quality of his education in the spring term of his Sixth Form year.

Though somewhat sweeping in character, the Program essentially signified a further extension of practices with which the School had been experimenting in various ways for a considerable period of time.

So well thought out and so cogently presented was the Program that the Faculty embarked during the winter on a careful study of the Council’s recommendations. A Faculty committee was appointed to explore the plan. All aspects of the project were discussed in Staff Meetings, by the Heads of Department, and in Department Meetings. Alternative proposals were canvassed. Only after repeated consideration was the Council’s proposal rejected.

In a careful statement, published in the Pelican of February 9th, the Rector explained in detail why it was not feasible to accept the Council’s proposal. At the same time, he expressed the admiration and gratitude of the Faculty for the intelligent way in which the Council had sought to deal with a fundamental educational issue, emphasized the degree to which the School had already participated in the movement for independent study now “vigorously developing on all levels of secondary and college education”, and expressed the School’s determination to “pursue this subject with a view to incorporating a period of independent Sixth Form study at a later time.”

The Council’s proposal provided a remarkable demonstration of the extent to which boys instinctively feel the need for revising traditional educational patterns, and of the degree to which they are capable of contributing, jointly with the Faculty, to the process of revision. It also revealed the pace at which cooperative action by boys and Faculty in the clarification of School policy — long a notable feature of St. Paul’s School — continues to grow in range and in depth.

To facilitate the understanding by both boys and Faculty of the problems involved in policy making, the School this year adopted the use of case studies based upon actual policy making experiences of other schools. These cases were presented in January to groups of Sixth Formers and Faculty meeting jointly under the direction of Professor Matthews and Mr. Thomas of the Harvard Business School.

The January meetings represented an extension to the whole Sixth Form of an experiment that had been tried with the Faculty in September, and with the Council and a small number of the Faculty meeting at Rye Beach before the opening of school in the fall.

The cases clearly exposed the pit-falls of policy making in problems of the curriculum, discipline, faculty-boy relationships, and other aspects of school life.

Joint discussion of these cases has done much to clarify, for boys and masters, the risks involved, here as elsewhere, in the formulation and execution of policy in a period of rapid change.

In the whole process of rethinking its policy, the School’s point of view is by no means unaffected by outside currents of thought. Here, for example, the Conroy Fellows make an invaluable contribution, none more so than Mr. Dave Brubeck, whose two visits during the winter term provided an education in progressive jazz at the highest level, and proffered a compelling invitation to revise one’s thinking in the whole area of music.

During his first visit, Mr. Brubeck explained and illustrated his philosophy of music, including a provocative analysis of the relationship of jazz to classical music. On this occasion he also auditioned some of the School combos.

On his second visit, he brought along his colleagues, Mr. Joe Morello, Mr. Eugene Wright, and Mr. Paul Desmond. On Saturday afternoon the incomparable Mr. Joe Morello conducted a drum clinic to the vast delight and instruction of everybody present. On the same evening Mr. Brubeck and his Quartet gave a jazz concert which, by its brilliant technique of improvisation within stated patterns, brought a standing ovation from the School.

The next morning in Chapel, the choir sang an anthem, They say I look like God, composed by Mr. Brubeck for Louis Armstrong. The subtleties of this combination of traditional chant and contemporary blues style introduced a fresh appropriate note into the more familiar patterns of church music.

One more pleasure is in store as a result of Mr. Brubeck’s visit, for he has written especially for the School an anthem with a jazz beat, which will be sung by the choir in the spring term.

The combination of intelligence, skill, and charm of personality which Mr. Brubeck and his colleagues brought to the School made the visit one of the most rewarding occasions of the winter term.

In the midst of all the rethinking of traditional patterns, the normal activities continue, though none remains static.
In the field of music, for example, Mr. Powell's Sunday evening organ recitals offer varied programs, and continue to be a source of delight to those who enjoy organ music. Particularly noteworthy were three Sunday evening performances, each accompanied by Mr. Powell on the organ: the first when Mr. Paul Giles played a Mozart concerto on the clarinet; the second, when Henry Post of the Fifth Form played a Hindemith sonata on the bassoon; and the third when Daniel Maxwell of the Sixth Form played selections from Schubert, Wagner, Tchaikovsky, and Handel on the trombone.

On January 30th, the Band played a concert, including, among other selections, Sousa marches, show tunes from Mary Poppins and from Fiddler on the Roof, themes from Romeo and Juliet and from Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg, novelty tunes, and a chorale.

For those interested in chamber music, the Bennington College String Quartet gave a concert in the Sheldon Library on January 12th.

At a different level of music, the School is periodically entertained by a variety of jazz bands organized by boys. Among the better known of such organizations at present are the Foul Dogs, the Split-Bearded Kings, and the Jazz Group.

The School's winter theatrical season provided a variety of offerings, including some very happy surprises. The Mish Talent Show was a more composed and polished performance than usual, the first prize going to the Jug Band, whose original choice of musical instruments, electrifying singing, singularly appropriate costumes, and subtle combination of the humorous and the serious proved irresistible.

Termed by the Pelican "the best ever seen", the Sixth Form Show, Hello, Molly, was a musical parody of Tom Jones, high-lighted by the acting of Bruce Bayne as Molly Makeshift, the singing of Ray Hornblower as Tom Jones, and the blandishments of Copy Coppedge as Doris Daresheets. The show was written by a corps of Sixth Formers, headed by André Bishop, who was responsible also for the direction and the "choreography", and, in no small measure for the success of the show. The whole production was managed with admirable restraint, appealing humor, and remarkable coordination, reflecting the coherent spirit of the Sixth Form, as well as their obvious talent for up-dating the eighteenth century.

Most interesting in many ways was the Fiske Cup competition in which all the Houses were represented. Nineteen plays were presented, perhaps a record. The most satisfying fact is that nine of the plays were written by boys in the School.

First prize went to the Upper Wing for its production of Edward Albee's The Sandbox, directed by Joe Wheelwright of the Sixth Form. Effective use of lighting, skillful characterization, and subtle creation of mood made this a fine performance.

Another delightful dramatic performance was the presentation in the Cercle Français of "Le Commissaire est Bon Enfant," by Georges Courceline.

Socially, the winter term was enlivened by three dances, the more formal Mid-Winter dance with all the usual festivities, and two informal tea-dances, one at the School, at which girls from Dana Hall were guests of the Cercle Français, and the other at Beverly, Massachusetts, where the boys were guests of the girls at the Shore Country Day School.

In athletics, the most interesting news was the Rector's announcement of the gift of the Knox Foundation which will enable the School to convert the three old English-style courts in the wing of the squash building into two courts of American dimensions, one of them to be an exhibition court with a seating capacity of one hundred. The work is now in progress, and the new courts should be available for use in the fall.

The squash team enjoyed a highly successful season, winning eight times, losing four. Larry Terrell played a uniformly top-flight game. He won the New England Interscholastic Tournament for the second year, and the School's Senior Championship for the fourth.

Another outstanding event in squash was the celebration last November 13th of the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Squash Courts. To mark the occasion, Mohibullah Khan, World's Champion, played two two-game exhibition matches with Robert G. Hetherington, twice winner of the New England Interscholastic Tournament while a boy at Deerfield and now fourth ranking player in the U.S. Mr. Khan and Mr. Hetherington also each played a match with Larry Terrell.

The hockey team had a relatively undistinguished season, losing to Choate in the Garden and placing third in the Lawrenceville Tournament. Perhaps the best fought games were the one against the Yale Freshmen on Dance Weekend, a 4-3 victory for St. Paul's and the one against Andover, in which SPS lost 1-3 despite some remarkably fine playing. Among individual performances during the season, spectators particularly enjoyed the versatility of Copy Coppedge.

In basketball we had a winning season by a narrow margin, seven victories to six defeats. The team took fifth place in the Boston Private School League. Larry Mowell was high scorer.

The ski team won four meets and lost six, a substantial improvement over recent seasons, and achieved more than one perfect score in cross country. Bruce McLane took the lead in cross country, and Captain Bob Merrill led the competition in the Alpine.

Boxing was enjoyed as much as ever under the skillful eye of Dick Whalen, who, to the regret of all, will retire this year after thirty-three years of coaching. Coach Whalen had a bad fall this winter and was out of circulation for ten days. During his absence, Captain John Evans did a fine job of coaching and supervising.

Periodically, the customary round is interrupted by the Rector's bestowal of blazer buttons on boys in recognition of special contributions to the general welfare, and the School is always interested in the Rector's choice. It fell this winter on John Evans for his supervision of boxing during Coach Whalen's absence; on Larry Terrell for his spectacular achievements in squash; on Nick Gagarin for his share in the Council's Program for Independent Study, his able talk at the meeting of the Parents Committee, and for the general excellence of his performance; on John Ferguson for his work on Focus, a new column in the Pelican; on Ray Hornblower for his part in the Sixth Form Show; and on George Lindsay for his aid to the same production.
The Rector also conferred Hubbard Awards, for special achievements in any one term, on André Bishop and Bill Claghorn for their contributions to the Sixth Form Show.

Inseparable from the welfare of St. Paul's School, in any term, are its relations with the town of Concord and the State of New Hampshire. Much effort has been devoted to rethinking these relationships, and happily they continue to grow in strength with the increasing consciousness of mutual interests.

Focal here is the Advanced Studies Program, which continues to have a beneficent impact. It has led to an exchange of educational ideas between St. Paul's and the schools and universities of New Hampshire that has contributed in no small measure to the clarification of School policy.

Apart from educational matters, the School has been for many months of great practical assistance to the town of Concord during the critical water shortage caused by the prolonged drought. Since January the School, through Turkey Pond, has been a major source of the town's water supply.

On the recreational side, the long standing custom of holding athletic contests between Faculty teams and various Concord groups is a continued source of enjoyment both to St. Paul's School and to its neighbors.

No description of this winter term would be complete without mentioning renovation of the gas house, the most recent indication of the extent to which the School is rethinking the architectural side of its heritage.

This appealing, traditionally designed, small round brick building with the conical roof, which was successively the School gas house, the home of Masters' Meetings, and more ignobly a deep freeze, has been converted into the new Post Office. It was opened for business at the end of the winter term.

The exterior of the building remains its round, substantial self, while the interior has been restored in clean, modern style, achieving a sense of simple elegance and uncluttered space. The simplicity of the interior complements the simplicity of the exterior, and the whole structure now provides a charming and integral link between past and present.

All in all, on returning to St. Paul's School after an absence of a year, and viewing it from the perspective of the fall and winter terms, one is struck by the growing coherence of the total structure, both in its physical and in its spiritual aspects. Emerging with ever greater clarity, amid conflicting viewpoints is a sense of direction which enables the School to move serenely forward in the midst of compelling change, sorting out those things which need to be preserved from those which need to be added or discarded. In this sense, St. Paul's School remains true to its character. In seeking to link the past with the present and the future, it has not turned its back upon eternity.

J. Carroll McDonald

S. P. S. MEETING IN WILMINGTON

Over the weekend of January 22nd and 23rd, the Rector and Mrs. Warren were in Wilmington, Delaware, where they stayed with the Rector's cousin, Dr. Robert Warren, one of Wilmington's leading pediatricians. On Sunday the Rector preached at Christ Church, and later in the day there was a reception at the Vicmead Hunt Club, arranged by A. Felix du Pont, Jr., '25, and well attended despite a heavy snow storm.
THE NATIONAL OUTDOOR LEADERSHIP SCHOOL

The following article is by Maurice E. Horn, Jr., '59, whose part in the rescue of a mountain climbing expedition on the Grand Teton in 1962 was noted in the Summer 1965 Alumni Horae.

Last summer I attended the National Outdoor Leadership School. I found it to be unique as a school. Our classroom was the entire Wind River Mountain Range in Wyoming. The course continued for thirty-one days in this wilderness “classroom”. During this time we were entirely separated from the trappings of civilization except for what we carried on our backs.

The primary object of the school is to develop outdoor leaders. To have such an objective means that the leader must know how to cope with and be safe in every outdoor situation. To have such an ability, a potential outdoor leader must be taught judgment. Judgment is the ability to relate knowledge and technical skills in one specific situation to all other situations, since no two situations in the outdoors are ever the same. Judgment is the only safety factor in the outdoors. The school is mainly concerned with developing judgment in its leaders.

A secondary objective of the school is to provide real adventure and to develop leaders who can provide adventure for others. Since World War II there has been a movement dedicated toward motivating and toughening youth both mentally and physically. This movement takes the fundamental premise that youth demands adventure. There is a natural drive for adventure in the process of growing up. By providing real adventure such a program can motivate youth. The National Outdoor Leadership School produces leaders who can provide these adventure programs safely.

In primitive tribes there was always some sort of ritual connected with passing from youth to manhood. There had to be a hunting trip alone, or a trophy brought back. Some sort of proof had to be given by youth before acceptance as an adult. In our sophisticated civilization we seem to have forgotten this.
In 1965, Mr. Paul Petzoldt started the National Outdoor Leadership School, of which he is the director, and whose classes in the mountains he personally supervises. He has developed an approach to mountaineering and to outdoor living which can be taught to other people. He originated his unique methods in the Tetons during the 1920's, and almost forty years of experience are reflected in his teaching.

Mr. Petzoldt felt that the leaders for new adventure programs were not qualified. There were few who could teach outdoor techniques together with judgment in relating these techniques to specific situations. There were leaders who were good teachers but were not skilled enough in outdoorsmanship. Some were good outdoorsmen but could not teach. Others were good mountain climbers but cared nothing for motivating youth. Some had good qualities but had dangerous "blank spots" in their outdoor ability. Part of their training was missing. You could not be sure that they were safe leaders. The result was ruined vacations and unenjoyable trips into the outdoors. People were getting only a small percentage of what they should have realized. Such a waste seemed unnecessary.

In order to have a program that could offer real adventure there have to be leaders capable of giving such a program safely. Such leaders must be able to pass on to their students knowledge and, most important, judgment in the outdoors. With this knowledge and judgment the students can carry on by themselves.

Mr. Petzoldt enlisted the help of Mr. Ernest Tapley, who is an expert in the field of youth motivation and teaching leaders. With the help of Mr. Tapley, the National Outdoor Leadership School was able to train leaders for the first time on a large scale.

The Wind River Mountain Range is a perfect setting for the school to conduct its training. The Wind Rivers are one of the least known of our great American mountain ranges. They include more than a hundred miles of spectacular summits which rival the Sierras and the Tetons. There are large ice fields, glaciers, and more than a thousand lakes teeming with trout. There are alpine valleys, cirques and meadows still unspoiled for the mountaineer or the backpacker to enjoy. There are many unfished virgin lakes. There are forests to test how well you can find your way. Some of the canyons are accessible only to the backpacker with more than trail experience. There are hundreds of miles of U-shaped glacial valleys with perpendicular cliffs which offer some of the finest rock climbing. Very few people visit this region. Last summer during a month-long course we saw only three people who were not part of the school.

Thirty-one days is a short time to train a leader. The school must be very selective in the things it teaches. It teaches only those things that a leader must know. It leaves out other things that would be nice to know.

The course includes instruction in leadership, organization, supply, equipment, logistics, mountaineering, rock climbing, snow and glacier techniques, rescue, first aid, accident prevention, fly casting, trout fishing, rations, cooking, map reading, horse packing, forest fire fighting, use of big game firearms, survival, advanced camping techniques, and methods of using, while preserving, our wilderness region in the tradition of conservation. Our graduates are able to plan and lead an expedition from beginning to end. Mountaineering is the main activity and instruction on how to lead and motivate outdoor groups is the paramount consideration.

Though the course is tough and adventuresome, only average strength and physical fitness are necessary. The main qualification for an invitation to the school is a desire to be a skilled outdoorsman and mountaineer and to become interested in future leadership for the benefit of American youth.
YOUNG INVESTIGATORS' AWARD

The following announcement concerning Dr. William John Powell, Jr., '53, is dated February 28, 1966.

Health, Education, and Welfare
Public Health Service
National Institute of Health
Bethesda, Maryland 20014

Wm. John Powell, Jr., M.D., of the National Heart Institute's Laboratory of Cardiovascular Physiology, has won the top honors in the Young Investigators' Awards competition sponsored by the American College of Cardiology. The award, which includes an engraved silver medal and a $1000 cash prize, was presented to Dr. Powell at the recent 15th Annual Convention of the College in Chicago by its President, Elliot Corday, M.D., of Los Angeles, California. Recipients of the Young Investigators' Awards are chosen in an open competition of manuscripts describing original scientific research. Dr. Powell's paper, based on work carried out jointly with Dr. N. Sheldon Skinner, Jr., of the same laboratory, was entitled "The effect of the catecholamines on ionic balance and vascular resistance in skeletal muscle."

Dr. Powell, 30, did his undergraduate work at Harvard University, then attended Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons, followed by a year each of internship, residency, and fellowship in the Department of Internal Medicine at Yale University. He joined the National Heart Institute in July 1964, working under Dr. Stanley J. Sarnoff. In the six years that the Young Investigators' Award competition has been held, researchers in Dr. Sarnoff's Laboratory of Cardiovascular Physiology have won four first places for the excellence of their work: Dr. Jere H. Mitchell, 1961; Dr. LeRoy Costantin, 1962; Dr. Willard M. Daggett, 1965; and this year, Dr. Powell.

ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL CHAIRS, PLATES, TIES, AND GLASSES

It has been suggested that the ALUMNI HORAE annually reprint information about the various School articles that Alumni may wish to purchase for themselves or as gifts for each other.

The School chair may be ordered from the Business Office, St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H. It is black, with cherry arms, and has the School shield in gold on the back. The price is $30.00 per chair, shipped collect from the factory in Gardner, Mass. Chairs ordered as gifts are shipped, prepaid, and the School bills the purchaser for the price of shipping.

The price of School dinner plates is $25.00 per set of a dozen plates. Plates should be ordered from the School Business Office. They are shipped collect from Concord; but, as in the case of the chairs, gifts will be sent prepaid, and the purchaser billed for shipping costs by the School. The following buildings and scenes are depicted on the plates:

- New Schoolhouse
- Hargate
- Sheldon Library
- Upper School Dining Room
- Crew at Turkey Pond
- Payson Science Building
- The Rectory
- The Middle
- Hockey Rink
- Memorial Hall
- Drury
- New Chapel

S.P.S. ties can be ordered from Mr. Arthur King, at the School Store. The Store has S.P.S. ties of four different sorts: four-in-hand, silk or knit, $3.75; bow, pointed or square tip, $3.25. Blazer shields are available at $2.75 and $6.75. The Store does not sell Halcyon, Shattuck, or other club ties.

From Mr. Arthur King at the School Store can also be ordered S.P.S. glasses (cocktail, high-ball, or old-fashioned glasses) bearing the School shield, at $9.00 per dozen, shipped express collect. (Gifts will be sent prepaid and the purchaser billed for the shipping costs.)

Editor's Note: The photograph on page 26 shows one of the “new” set of plates, which were made in 1956. The supply of “old” plates, made in 1928, is now exhausted.

THE BENJAMIN RUSH TOLAND MEMORIAL

The loyalty and long service of nine staff employees of the School have received recognition in the past few years as the result of a bequest of Robert Toland, ’13, honoring the memory of Benjamin Rush Toland, ’38.

The School received $3,000 in 1955 from Mr. Toland’s estate with the request, which had been stated in his will, that the income be granted “to the employee (other than masters) who has done the most for the School during the current year”.

Those who have received this honor are:

James Reardon and Denis Dwyer

1959-60
Albert E. Jones, Jacob E. Quinney, and George A. Russell

December 1961
Mrs. Ruth Sanborn and Gerald C. Edmunds

June 1965
Mrs. Idabelle Gilson and Mrs. Virginia Irwin

The School deeply appreciates this opportunity to bring honor to these men and women who have done so much for the School. We look forward to future annual announcements of the winners of the Benjamin Rush Toland Memorial.

From the proceeds of the game, the St. Paul’s Advanced Studies Program has received a contribution of $3,243.37.
BOOK REVIEW

In Vietnam, at present, the United States is suffering a slow hemorrhage of men, spirit, and resources. But if Vietnam is an indication that we are adopting a policeman-of-the-world policy, springing to curtail and punish Communist-inspired revolutions in the underdeveloped nations, then another peril may yet arise. To combat these uprisings, the noble police department asks for a greater and greater share of the budget, at the expense of education, fire prevention, health, and recreation. Then they demand greater policy initiative and freedom of action. Still dissatisfied, they finally try to take over city hall itself. In the interest of the public, of course.

George Kelly's excellent book only occasionally (pp. 75n., 365) deals with American policy, but his subject provokes its own comparisons. From research in a wide variety of French publications he tells the story of the impact on the French Army of the wars in Indo-China (1947-54) and in Algeria (1954-62). He analyzes closely, philosophizes carefully, moralizes never. The loss of the first war (in which French officials had frequently predicted victory by "next year") created a complexe centurion among many French officers, who then had to fight a second time against colonial nationalists, in Africa. Here the centurions, as imperial warriors, developed their own style of counter-revolutionary warfare. They saw "world communism" as the omnipresent enemy; they worked up a corporatist counter-philosophy that confused war with virility, and virility with profundity. They practiced a psychological warfare that required garrison-readiness among the civilians they defended, and involved a strange mixture of solicitude for, and use of terror against, those they attacked. The absolutism of their own cause, and the ruthlessness of some of their revolutionary opponents, allowed the centurions to justify torture and summary executions. Counter-philosophy, counter-psychology, counter-surprise, and counter-terror together required such a degree of administrative control that the centurions at last grew exasperated with civilian supremacy and tried by mutiny to "save" France, Algeria, and the Army. DeGaulle instead prevailed. The centurions were tried and sentenced. Algeria obtained independence as Vietnam had before it. France would go on to seek for glory elsewhere, its great and crippled history suffering from a new wound. Having told this story, Kelly con-eludes with absorbing reflections on army, state, and nation in an era of Cold War.

The author's first articles on politics, even then rigorous and knowledgeable, appeared in the Horae Scholasticae when he was a Third Former. This unusual mind has been growing in breadth and humanity for twenty years since and has now produced a splendid book of great interest.

THE FORM AGENTS' DINNER

THE Form Agents' dinner was held at the Racquet and Tennis Club in New York on Thursday, January 20, 1966. Thirty-one Form Agents were present, and the total attendance was forty-two.

Lawrence Hughes, '43, Chairman of the 1966 Alumni Fund Committee, welcomed the guests: the Rector; William H. Moore, '33, President of the Board of Trustees; John P. Humes, '39, President of the Alumni Association; Mr. Albert H. Gordon, Chairman of the Parents Committee; Seymour H. Knox, 3d, '44, a member of the Board of Trustees; two former Fund Chairmen, Thomas T. Richmond, '31, and Colton P. Wagner, '37; and three members of the Faculty, Messrs. George W. Chase, Herbert Church, Jr., '40, and Maurice R. Blake.

The Chairman extended a warm welcome to the senior Form Agent present, Francis Donaldson, '97, as well as to two new Form Agents, Robert B. Deans, Jr., '43, and Norman E. Mack, 2d, '44; and awarded silver urns engraved with the School seal to Albert Tilt, 3d, '46, and Seymour H. Knox, 3d, '44, each of whom had completed twenty years as a Form Agent.

Mr. Hughes next reviewed the Form Agents' work in recent years. He pointed out that the staff of the Alumni Association in New York would be pleased to be of assistance when any agent had questions or problems. He then introduced Mrs. Ruby L. Sheppard and thanked her on behalf of all the Form Agents for her continuous valuable work.

After the business of the Fund had been completed, several of the guests gave interesting talks.

Mr. Gordon discussed the purpose and aims of the Parents Committee. He said that the non-alumni parents were extremely grateful to the School and welcomed the opportunity to show their appreciation and affection by contributing to the Parents Fund (which does not solicit contributions from alumni parents).

Mr. Chase, a member of the Mathematics Department, discussed the application at St. Paul's of the new ideas in this field of study, so vital today to a grasp of the language of science. He emphasized the importance of the selection and presentation of the material to be taught as the essence of the "new Math".

Mr. Warren praised the Alumni Fund on behalf of those who work at the School. The Fund enables many programs to be undertaken which would otherwise be impossible. The Rector also spoke of the generous gift from the Knox Foundation which is being used to remodel the three old courts in the wing of the squash building. And he discussed, finally, the experimental studies being carried out at the School with the help of the Harvard Business School. In conclusion, Mr. Warren emphasized that alumni support and understanding help was a key factor in the School's prosperity and leadership, and he thanked all concerned for the part they played.

The meeting was concluded by the singing of "Salve Mater", led by Dr. Arthur E. Neergaard, '99; but many stayed on and had the pleasure of seeing the movies of the SPS football team in action which Maurice Blake had brought with him.

1966 ALUMNI FUND INTERIM REPORT - as of March 15, 1966

This year’s Alumni Fund has started off in great fashion. Our goal, which is to beat the 1965 total of $122,221.36, will certainly be attained if gifts continue to come in at their present rate. As of March 15th, 803 donors have contributed $49,749.68 which represents an increase over last year’s totals at this time by 14 donors and $9,178.99.

The form of 1941 agreed to make a gift to the School of the newly renovated flag pole area for their twenty-fifth anniversary. An original committee of Archer Harman, Jr., John C. McIlwaine, and Richard W. Mechem recommended the gift. Headed by H. T. Hilliard, and working in conjunction with Co-Agents Edward Elliman and F. E. Storer, Jr., as a special committee, they seem well on their way to attaining the necessary funds. The area will be dedicated as a memorial to the members of the Form of 1941 who were killed in the Second World War and Korean War. All of us who attend the rowing ceremonies and athletic awards will benefit from this fine addition to the School grounds.

An outstanding gift of $5,000 has been given by an alumnus who has had three sons at the School. Since alumni parents of boys who are at school and of those who have graduated are not solicited by the Parents Committee, it is hoped that additional gifts of this nature will be given to the Fund this year by those who recognize their dual role as parents and alumni.

An increasing number of corporations have adopted the “matching gifts programs” for secondary schools whereby contributions made by their employees are matched by equal contributions. Possibly there may still be some alumni who are unaware of their employers’ having such a program. Accordingly, below are all of the known companies with “matching gift programs” that include secondary schools. Those indicated by asteriks, are corporations which have matched gifts to St. Paul’s:

*Air Reduction Co.
Albion Malleable Iron Co.
American Brake Shoe Co.
*Bank of New York
Barton-Gillet Co.
Bishop Trust Co., Ltd.

Boston Manufacturers Mutual Ins. Co.
*Bristol Myers Co.
*Burlington Industries
Cabot Corp., Mass.
The Carborundum Co.
Carter Products, Inc., N.Y.
On behalf of the Alumni Fund I would like to extend thanks to those who have already contributed, and to express the appreciation of the Alumni Association and the School to the Form Agents who have worked so hard to achieve these fine results so early in the campaign.

PARENTS COMMITTEE MEETING

The annual meeting of the Parents Committee of St. Paul’s School was held Saturday, February 19, 1966, from 4:30 until 6:00 p.m. in the Reading Room of the Schoolhouse. Members of the Committee attending, in addition to Mr. Albert H. Gordon, the Chairman, were: Messrs. Andrews, Barker, Clay, French, Furlaud, Hornblower, Mandeville, Ransmeier, Reeve, Ross, Seward, and Dr. Billings and Dr. Branson.

At the beginning of the meeting, Mr. Gordon introduced Nicholas Gagarin, vice-president of the Sixth Form, who gave an interesting account of the year as seen through a boy’s eyes. He discussed vertical housing, the Harvard Business School case discussions, and the work the Council has done in developing a proposal for independent study for Sixth Formers.

Mr. Gordon next introduced Mr. Warren who spoke briefly about the School and expressed appreciation for the work of the Parents Committee.

Various matters concerning the handling of the Fund letter were then discussed.
At the end of the meeting, Mr. Gordon thanked the members of the Committee for their cooperation with him. Mr. Warren thanked Mr. Gordon, on behalf of the Committee and of the School, for his effective leadership of the Committee during the past two years. Mr. Warren announced that Mr. James S. Barker has accepted appointment as Chairman of the 1966-1967 Parents Committee.

LONG ISLAND CHURCH SERVICE AND RECEPTION

The annual St. Paul's School Service for New York alumni was held at St. John's Church, Lattingtown, Locust Valley, Long Island, on March 6, 1966, through the kindness of the Reverend Howard M. Lowell, the Rector of that church.

A particular effort was made to invite the parents of prospective boys and friends of the school in addition to alumni living in the Long Island area. This was the first service held on Long Island in a number of years, and there was a gratifying response from those living outside New York, for whom it has been difficult to attend the service usually held in the city.

The lesson was read by William S. Moorhead, 3d, President of the Sixth Form, and the sermon was preached by Mr. Warren. The St. John's choir gave an excellent rendition of "O Pray for the Peace of Jerusalem", for which the music, as were the tunes for the traditional school hymns that were sung, was written by James Carter Knox, 1865.

After the service, there was a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Warren, followed by a cocktail party and a buffet supper at the Creek Club which was attended by a large number of alumni and their wives.

These events were arranged by Mrs. George N. Lindsay and Mrs. Bayard H. Megear, Co-chairmen of the Long Island Committee, whose very kind efforts were gratefully appreciated by all those who were present at this very pleasant occasion.

NEW EDITOR OF THE ALUMNI HORAE

The Alumni Association is delighted to be able to announce that Roger Drury '32, Harvard '36, son of the fifth Rector, has accepted the position of Editor of the ALUMNI HORAE.

Mr. Drury, who lives on a farm in Sheffield, Massachusetts, with his wife, nee Virginia Jenney, and their four children, is the author of the widely acclaimed biography of his father "Drury of St. Paul's." Two of his three boys have graduated from the School and the youngest, Daniel, is now a sixth former.
EDITORIAL

On March 11, 1966, at the beginning of the spring vacation, there occurred an event that has a place in the history of St. Paul's School. Miss Ingeborg Louise Schade was married that day in the New Chapel to Mr. Robert Roy Eddy. The bride, born and brought up at the School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Rudolf Schade. The bridegroom has been teaching mathematics at the School since about 1950.

To the best of our knowledge, this is only the second time that a master at the School has married the daughter of a colleague. The first such marriage, which was also the first marriage to be solemnized in the New Chapel, was that of the Rev. James Potter Conover (uncle of Mrs. Richard Rush) and Miss Mary Bowman Coit, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry A. Coit.

The wedding of Miss Schade and Mr. Eddy, attended as it was by a large number of friends of all ages from near and far, on a lovely almost-spring afternoon, was one of the happiest events that has taken place at the School.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The following letter was received by Mr. Robert P.T. Coffin, Jr., our Director of Admissions.

Feb. 17, 1966

Dear Mr. Coffin,

I am sure this letter is quite a surprise for you: I am writing you in the name of the nine French boys who spent a year or two at St. Paul’s School. This letter is meant to be presented to the Alumni Horae Committee, and the Pelican Committee, but since I don’t know to whom it is to be sent, I shall ask you, if you please, to transmit it to whom it may concern.

First we would like to thank and congratulate the Alumni Association which keeps us aware of the School life at St. Paul’s. With the help of the Alumni Horae we still feel like members of the School society, and we all enjoy very much having news of boys and teachers we know.

In return for this we all would like to say a few words about what we are doing presently; these words were collected during our last meeting the 9th of February.
Christian Glatron -
"I am now studying Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry at "Polytechnique", the "X of France" as we call it over here. After my military service, I am planning to finish my studies in the States, in a University such as Cal. Tech. or M.I.T. Since I am going to San Francisco this summer at Bechtel Society for a training period, I hope I shall have the opportunity to meet some of the boys I met at St. Paul's."

Thierry Aube -
"I am in my last year at the "Institut d'Etudes Politiques" of Paris, and I am preparing the examinations which will allow me to get out of it. If I pass them successfully, I shall take the exam to get into the "Ecole Nationale d'Administration", commonly called E.N.A. I shall probably go to the States next summer, or at any rate the summer after, and at the same time I shall pay a visit to the School."

Eric Roty -
"Having passed the baccalauréat, I am now studying Economic and Political Sciences at Paris University."

Marc Gatin -
"I am preparing for the baccalauréat, and then I expect to keep studying Mathematics and Sciences. In the summer of '67 I shall spend two months in the States with Nick, and of course we shall go up to St. Paul's School to see everybody.

Nicolas de Chezelles -
"I am now in "Mathématiques Elementaires", which is an elementary course of Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry. I shall take the baccalauréat, next June, and then I expect to study Sciences for two or three more years before getting into an Engineering School. As Marc said, we plan to spend two months in the States in 1967; a one-month training period at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and then a touring trip in the Middle West. Of course we shall drop in on the School."

Patrice Gaunard -
"I am now in the so-called Première; in other words, I shall leave my school next year if things go all right. Then I shall study Biology to become finally a Doctor, which will take me some ten years. But I expect to return to the States and see SPS before the end of my studies."

Jacques Dermer -
"I am still in the Lycée Claude-Bernard to continue my studies, and actually I still have a long way to go before I see the end of it. I shall have to choose between E.N.A. or the doctorship. Anyway, I am already planning a trip to the States and I hope I shall meet a great number of Paulees."
Unfortunately, we missed the presence of Thierry Baumgart who is in Germany and Nicolas Gergely who was held up with his studies.

We founded a club in 1963 which meets four times a year, and each year we are glad to welcome one or two new members. Soon the French S.P.S. Club will be able to have a firm and steady organization. In the future we shall try to keep you aware of our activities and situations.

I hope, Mr. Coffin, that you won’t find any trouble in helping us and in advance I thank you very much. Will you, please, give my best greetings to Mrs. Coffin and to all of your children.

We shall all be glad to see you again some day if we return to the School.

Very truly and thankfully yours,

NICOLAS DE CHEZELLES

Dear Mr. Edmonds:

Isn’t this an interesting letter from Paul Hurst, ’35? I wrote him that I would send it on to you with the hope that you might get it in the Spring Alumni Horae, as so many are now leaving for Japan for cherry blossom time.

I haven’t lost my love of travel and three years ago got as far as Abu Sembel before its removal was begun. One of the exciting moments of my last trip was when I held in my hands a silver salver at Magdalen College, Oxford, which had been presented by one of my great-grandfathers of the 1640’s, Sir Francis Bickley, who was a student there. This reminded me of all those entries Miss King and I used to make of gifts to St. Paul’s by alumni and I wondered if some descendant of one of my “Old Boys” might ask in the year 2240 what his great-grandfather had given the school in 1940. How’s that for a plug for the Alumni Fund? Really those old English records are amazing.

I always read the Alumni Horae with interest. I hope you are enjoying “good health, good thoughts, and good humor,” as William Bird says so often in his diary. My best to you and any others who remember me.

Sincerely,

OLIVE FISHER
Paul Hurst’s letter to Miss Fisher follows:

aboard STAGHOUND
February 10, 1966

Dear Olive:

Greetings from Hong Kong.

I have been renewing the HOUND here. After nine years of cruising in regions where no yacht yards existed, and after extra wind in the Indian Ocean and China Sea, the boat needed repairs.

Weekends I cruise where “The Many Splendored Thing” was filmed.

En route I spent a month in Vietnam. Nha Trang is Acapulco forty years ago. Fine beaches, twenty pound lobsters and French cuisine. Cats and small elephants a few miles inland.

Ten parts of the HOUND story have appeared in a magazine. If it is all published, I’ll let you know.

Be sure anyone you know from School looks me up. We’ll have a sail; the boat is ready for sea now. I am either aboard at the Royal Hong Kong Yacht Club or at my flat - phone 773718.

Or perhaps you know someone in Japan from School. I sail towards there the end of next month and hope to be there several months.

I imagine you are about ready for another trip. Which might give me the chance of seeing you in the Orient.

Best regards,

PAUL

There follows part of a letter written last winter by Bernard Gray, ’65, to his Form Agent, Peter P. Twining:

Chandos House
Stowe
Buckingham

Pete —

I’m at Stowe for a year. Much to the dismay of some of our classmates, I decided to take a year in England at a public school to broaden my horizon and stock up some experience before college. I was a little apprehensive myself about being “stuck” in a strict school for another year, but now am assured that I am profiting from the values that such a year can offer.

The English Speaking Union sends about 60 boys to English schools from the States each year. Schools like Choate, Andover, Kent, and Hill each send two or three boys who are awarded scholarships.
I'm a "fee payer". There are twenty of us who came over on the Queen Elizabeth and were sent to our respective schools after a short stay in London. We all get to London on weekends occasionally and went to Austria for two weeks in January to ski during Christmas vacation — one of the greatest vacations I've had.

Stowe life itself can be a little frustrating at times, but it has been enjoyable, interesting, and certainly worthwhile. One is treated like the rest of the new boys at first, but after a while one can make friends and get respect and companionship by being an American representative.

Good luck,

BERNY GRAY
